

GENDER EQUALITY

Introduction

- The main aim of this goal is to achieve equal rights and opportunities for all women and girls.

Gender equality means men and women should be treated the same, should have equal respect, and should get equal chances in education, jobs, and decision-making.

Why Gender Equality is Important

- Gender equality is important because women deserve the same rights, respect, and opportunities as men.
- When women are educated, safe, and empowered, families and communities grow stronger. A country can develop faster only when both men and women progress together.

Problem Statement

- Even today, women and girls around the world do not get equal rights.
They face discrimination, violence, unequal pay, early marriage, and limited access to education and leadership positions.

Objectives

- Give equal rights to women and men
- Stop discrimination and violence
- Provide equal education, jobs, and salary
- Increase women's participation in leadership
- To end child marriage and forced marriage.

Solutions

Individual Level

- Treat everyone equally
- Speak against harassment
- Support girls' education

Community Level

- Create awareness programs
- Give skill training to women
- Make public places safe

Government Level

- Strong laws for women's safety
- Stop child marriage
- Equal pay and job chances

Technology & Education

- Safety apps for women
- Online learning for girls
- Spread awareness on social media
